Covert Surveillance Systems

Industrial Television also produces various custom designed and built covert systems. A typical application used by local councils and authorities is the video monitoring and recording systems fitted into common domestic items. This enables the capture of unscrupulous individuals who think nothing of illegal "fly" tipping. Video cameras may also be fitted to convenient walls, posts or other objects in order to monitor the required area.

The police have also used items produced by Industrial Television for monitoring various activities and areas of interest.

As with all Industrial Television's projects, an open mind and lateral thinking with close liaison with the customer to accurately identify the requirement allows us to produce the best solution for each unique situation.
